The Broad Prize selection jury, comprised of nationally prominent leaders from education, government, public service and business, chooses the winner of The Broad Prize. The selection jury reviews quantitative and qualitative data on each finalist school district, provided by MPR Associates and RMC Research Corporation, and selects the urban school district that demonstrates the best overall performance and improvement in student achievement while narrowing income and ethnic achievement gaps as the winner of The Broad Prize. This year’s selection jury consisted of the following 11 members:

Henry Cisneros
Executive Chairman, CityView
Henry Cisneros is executive chairman of the CityView companies, which work with the nation’s leading homebuilders to create homes for working families. Previously, Cisneros was president and chief operating officer of Univision Communications, the largest Spanish-language media company in the nation. In 1993, he became President Bill Clinton’s first secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Cisneros became the first Hispanic mayor of a major U.S. city when he was elected mayor of San Antonio in 1981. During his four terms as mayor, Cisneros helped rebuild the city’s economic base and created jobs through massive infrastructure and downtown improvements.

Christopher Dodd
Chairman and CEO, Motion Picture Association of America, Inc.
Former U.S. Senator from Connecticut
Former U.S. Senator Chris Dodd is chairman and chief executive officer of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc. Dodd represented Connecticut in Congress from 1974 to 2010. He served three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives and was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1980, serving until 2010 and becoming the longest-serving senator in Connecticut’s history. He formed the first children’s caucus in the Senate, authored the first child care legislation since World War II, and wrote the Family and Medical Leave Act. Dodd served as chairman of the Democratic National Convention from 1995 to 1997. Following Dodd’s graduation from Providence College, he joined the Peace Corps, serving in the Dominican Republic from 1966 to 1968. Upon returning to the United States, he enlisted in the U.S. Army National Guard and Army Reserves. Dodd earned a law degree from the Brandeis School of Law at University of Louisville and practiced law in New London, Conn., before his election to Congress.

Donald Graham
Chairman and CEO, Washington Post Company
Donald E. Graham was named chief executive officer of The Washington Post Company in 1991 and chairman of the board in 1993. He served as publisher of The Post from 1979 to 2000 and as chairman of the newspaper from 2000 to 2008. Graham is chairman of the District of Columbia College Access Program and has served as a member of the Pulitzer Prize board. He is a trustee of the Federal City Council and of the Philip L. Graham Fund, which was established in 1963 in memory of his father. He is also a director of Facebook, The Summit Fund of Washington, the College Success Foundation and KIPP-DC.

James Hunt, Jr.
Chairman of the Board, James B. Hunt Jr. Institute for Educational Leadership and Policy
Former Governor of North Carolina
James Hunt, Jr. is a partner in the Raleigh, N.C., office of the law firm of Womble, Carlyle, Sandridge and Rice and is chairman of the board of the James B. Hunt, Jr. Institute for Educational Leadership and Policy. A four-term governor of North Carolina from 1977 to 1985 and again from 1993 to 2001, Hunt is a respected national leader in education reform. During his 16 years as governor, he dramatically raised North Carolina’s student test scores and ensured that teacher salaries were raised to match the national average. A strong supporter of high standards in public schools, Hunt served as chairman of the National Education Goals Panel and vice chairman of the board of Achieve. He also published a book outlining North Carolina’s education plan and describing his own experiences with public education, called “First in America: An Education Governor Challenges North Carolina.”
Michael Lomax
President and CEO, United Negro College Fund
Michael Lomax has been president and chief executive officer of the United Negro College Fund since 2004. He launched the UNCF Institute for Capacity Building, which helps UNCF’s 39-member historically black colleges and universities become stronger, more effective and more self-sustaining. Lomax is co-chair of the Education Equality Project, a member of the Aspen Institute’s Commission on No Child Left Behind, and a member of the governing boards of Teach For America, the KIPP Foundation and the National Alliance of Public Charter Schools. He is also a frequent contributor to the National Journal’s Education Experts blog and author of the “MorehouseMan” blog at Essence.com. Lomax also serves on the boards of the Smithsonian Institution’s Museum of African American History and Culture and the Studio Museum of Harlem. He founded the National Black Arts Festival.

Edward G. Rendell
Former Governor of Pennsylvania
Edward G. Rendell served two terms as governor of Pennsylvania, two terms as mayor of Philadelphia and two terms as district attorney of Philadelphia. He was also chairman of the Democratic National Committee in 2000. Rendell sits on several boards, is a Brookings Fellow and teaches at the University of Pennsylvania. He is a consultant or board member for several green and alternative energy firms, including Own Energy, Element Partners and Ocean Thermal Energy. Rendell is also heavily involved in the campaign for government efficiency and strategic cost-cutting through his work with entities such as Government Sourcing Solutions, Public Financial Management and Greenhill Advisors. As governor, Rendell worked with New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg and California Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger to create “Building America’s Future,” which focuses on investment in American infrastructure projects to ensure that America maintains its place as a global economic power.

Condoleezza Rice
Thomas and Barbara Stephenson Senior Fellow, The Hoover Institution of Stanford University
Former U.S. Secretary of State
Condoleezza Rice served as the 66th secretary of state of the United States from 2005 to 2009. Prior to that, she was President George W. Bush’s national security advisor from 2001 to 2005. From 1993 to 1999, she was Stanford University’s provost, during which time she was the university’s chief budget and academic officer. She returned to Stanford in March 2009 as a political science professor and a senior fellow at the Hoover Institution. In September 2010, Rice became a faculty member of the Stanford Graduate School of Business and a director of its Global Center for Business and the Economy. She has served as a member of the boards of directors for the Chevron Corporation, the Charles Schwab Corporation, the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation, the University of Notre Dame, and the San Francisco Symphony Board of Governors. She is also a member of the boards of the Commonwealth Club, the Aspen Institute, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, and the Boys and Girls Clubs of America. Rice earned a bachelor’s degree in political science from the University of Denver, a master’s degree from the University of Notre Dame, and a Ph.D. from the Graduate School of International Studies at the University of Denver.

Richard W. Riley
Partner, Nelson, Mullins, Riley & Scarborough LLP
Former U.S. Secretary of Education
Former Governor of South Carolina
Richard W. Riley is currently a partner in the law firm Nelson, Mullins, Riley & Scarborough. As governor of South Carolina from 1979 to 1987, Riley won national recognition for successfully improving the state’s educational system. He became the first governor in South Carolina history to be elected to a second term after voters passed an amendment to the constitution allowing him to run a second time. Riley was then chosen by President Bill Clinton in 1992 to serve as U.S. secretary of education. During his eight-year tenure as education secretary, Riley helped launch historic initiatives to raise academic standards and improve instruction for poor and disadvantaged children. He also expanded grant and loan programs to help more Americans attend college, to prepare young people for the world of work and to improve teaching. Since leaving his national post in 2001, Riley has continued to serve on a number of boards and work with a variety of entities to improve education across America.

Margaret Spellings
President and CEO, Margaret Spellings and Company
Executive Vice President, National Chamber Foundation
Former U.S. Secretary of Education
Margaret Spellings is president and CEO of Margaret Spellings and Company and a leading national expert on public policy. Spellings also serves as a senior advisor to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and as president of the U.S. Forum for Policy Innovation. From 2005 to 2009, she served as U.S. secretary of education under President George W. Bush. As a member of the president’s Cabinet, Spellings led the implementation of the No Child Left Behind Act. She was a White House domestic policy advisor from 2001 to 2005, during which time she managed the development of the president’s domestic policy agenda. Prior to her service in the White House, Spellings served as senior advisor to then-Texas Gov. George W. Bush, led government relations efforts for the Texas Association of School Boards, served in various leadership capacities for the Texas legislature, and worked for local education organizations including Austin Community College.
Andrew Stern
Senior Research Fellow, Georgetown Public Policy Institute
President Emeritus, Service Employees International Union
Andrew Stern is a senior research fellow at the Georgetown Public Policy Institute, where he conducts and coordinates research on public policy issues. He is president emeritus of the Service Employees International Union (SEIU), the largest and fastest-growing labor union in America. The SEIU represents more than 2 million working members, including health care workers, education workers, and other public service employees, as well as building service and security workers.

Mortimer Zuckerman
Chairman and Editor-In-Chief, U.S. News & World Report
Publisher, New York Daily News
Mortimer B. Zuckerman is the chairman and editor-in-chief of U.S. News & World Report and publisher of the New York Daily News. He is also the co-founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Boston Properties Inc. and a regular commentator on The McLaughlin Group. Zuckerman is a trustee of Memorial Sloan-Kettering, a member of the Bank of America Global Wealth and Investment Management Committee, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Washington Institute for Near East Studies, the International Institute of Strategic Studies and is a board member and treasurer of the International Peace Institute. He is also on the board of directors for The Broad Center for the Management of School Systems, vice chairman of The Fund for Public Schools, a former associate professor of city and regional planning at the Harvard Graduate School of Design, a former lecturer of city and regional planning at Yale University, and a past president of the board of trustees of the Dana Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

The following leaders serve on The Broad Prize selection jury, but did not vote in the 2012 selection process:

Shirley Ann Jackson
President, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

Roderick Paige
Former U.S. Secretary of Education

Donna Shalala
President, University of Miami
Former U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services

The Eli and Edythe Broad Foundation
10900 Wilshire Boulevard
Los Angeles, California 90024
T 310.954.5050
F 310.954.5051
broadprize@broadfoundation.org
www.broadprize.org